

Privacy Policy

Version number	1
Approved by	Corporate Governance Board
Date of approval	8/2/2019

Purpose

The privacy of student and staff information is of the utmost importance to Sydney Institute of Higher Education (SIHE). Effective privacy and information procedures are crucial to the safety and security of staff and students of SIHE and the overall success of its operations.

The Privacy Policy outlines the processes through which SIHE monitors and manages privacy pursuant to Federal and State legislation. It establishes the means through which staff and student information will be collected, stored and protected.

Scope

This policy applies to:

- All SIHE staff and students
- Contractors and subcontractors
- Work experience students and working volunteers
- Visitors and external experts who take part in SIHE operations

It also applies to students who are undertaking work-integrated learning, as both the student and workplace involved are expected to adhere to privacy standards.

Principles

SIHE acknowledges its moral and legal responsibility to promote and protect information privacy and welfare of all students and staff members and other workers at SIHE. Upholding this responsibility is vital to the successful operation of SIHE's higher education operation, including data integrity, storage and privacy of students as well as staff members. This policy contains information about how SIHE deals with personal information and the rights of the individual if SIHE breaches their privacy.

As per the Compliance Framework Policy, SIHE will ensure that this policy aligns with all relevant and applicable legislation and regulations. Sydney Institute of Higher Education is subject to the Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998 and the Health Records and Information Privacy Act 2002.
